

SUMMERS/FORNARO: Hello! My name is Mary Summers, and I represent the American Association of School Administrators. Beside me today is Suzanne Fornaro who represents The Learning Disabilities Association of America.

We are here to tell you a little bit about a tool that appears on the IDEA Partnership website. "Many Voices" is a wonderful resource. It is a collection of citations and articles from publications that are available online. Those publications include professional journals, other journals, periodicals, and magazines. The information is divided by topic, so you can click on the topic and then you can read various opinions and information from a number of sources about the topics in which you are interested. Please take an opportunity to go to the website and try it out. We also would like input on topics that you find of interest that you would like to appear here. We think you'll find this tool very valuable after you have an opportunity to use it.
